Let us live as men who are sometime to grow old, and to whom it will be the most dreadful of all evils to count their past years by former luxuriance of health only by the maladies which riot has produced.

Good words do more than hard speeches: as the sunbeams without any noise will make the traveler cast off his cloak, which all the blustering wind could not do, but only make him bend it closer to him

The damps of autumn sink into the leaves and prepare them for the necessity of their fall; and thus insensibly are we, as years close around us, detached from our tenacity of life by the gentle pressure of recorded sorrow.

If you would relish food, labor for it before you take it; if enjoy clothing, pay for it before you wear it; if you would sleep soundly, take a clear conscience to bed with you.

Evil thoughts are worse enemies than lions and tigers, for we can keep out of their way; but bad thoughts win their way everywhere; keep your head and heart full of good thoughts, that bad ones may find no room to enter.

That policy that can strike only while the iron is hot will be overcome by that perseverance which, like Cromwell's can make the iron hot by striking; and he that can only rule the storm must yield to him who can both raise and rule it.

There is gold in the rocks which fringe the pass of the Spingen, gold even in the stones which mends the roads, but there is too little of it to be worth extracting. Alas! how like too many books and sermons. Not so the scriptures. They are much finer gold —their very dust is precious.

In the decline of life, shame and grief are of short duration; whether it be that we bear easily what we have borne long, or that, finding ourselves in age less regarded, we less regard others; or, that we look with slight regard upon afflictions, to which we know that the hand of death is about to put an end.

The life that is devoted to knowledge passes silently away, and is very little diversified by events. To talk in public, to think in solitude, to read and to hear, to inquire, and to answer inquiries, is the business of a scholar. He wanders about the world without pomp or terror, and is neither known nor valued but by men like himself.

LIGHT THROUGH CLOUDS.

Because I hold it sinful to despond,
And will not let the bitterness of life
Blind me with burning tears, but look beyond
Its tumult and its strife.

Because I lift my head above the mist,
Where the sun shines and the broad breezes blow,
By every ray and every raindrop kissed,
That God's love doth bestow;

Think you I find no bitterness at all,
No burden to be borne like Christian's pack?
Think you there are no ready tears to fall,
Because I keep them back.

Why should I hug life's ills with cold reserve
To curse myself and all who love me? Nay,
A thousand times more good than I deserve
God gives me every day.

And in each one of these rebellious tears,
Kept bravely back he makes a rainbow shine,
Grateful I take his slightest gifts; no fears
Nor any doubts are mine.

Dark skies must clear, and when the clouds are past,
One golden day redeems a weary year;
Patient I listen, sure that sweet at last
Will sound his voice of cheer.

The Heart of Ice.

The winter's day was drawing to a close, and the bleak shades of a snowy night were setting in.

In the silent seclusion of a deep and lonely glen, far from any other habitation, and some length from the public road, stood a small cottage, known as the Glen Farmhouse, the property of Ralph Granite, who resided there with his wife, and had done so for thirty years.

He was a cold, hard man—cold and hard as the name he bore.

Mary Granite, his wife, was the exact reverse, with a motherly face and a warm and tender heart.

On this bleak night of December, this night of storm, wind and snow, Granite and his wife were quietly seated in the large, homely kitchen.

At last Mrs. Granite, dropping her knitting in her lap, broke the silence of the room.

"I wonder where Alice is to-night, Ralph?"

"What do you care where she is, eh?" roughly exclaimed the farmer, looking up from his paper with a dark frown.

"A night of storm never comes but I think of my poor girl! It was on such a night as this that she left our home, and to-night I have such a strange feeling at my heart."

"Banish her from your thoughts as I have done—the disobedient girl."

"Oh, Ralph, Ralph, it is unfatherly to talk thus! Remember that she is your daughter, my child—the only child God ever gave us."

And tears came rushing to the poor mother's eyes.

"What claim has she on us now? A very dutiful daughter she proved, didn't she!" cried the father, bitterly. "When Alice disobeyed me by marrying that fop, George Convey, I tore her face and memory out of my heart."

"Alice was never a disobedient child—never, never!" wept the mother. "She loved a man who loved her truly. She came to you and told you all; he, too, came, and asked your consent, to marry Alice. What was your answer? You refused, insulted him, and thrust him from your house."

"As I'd do again," muttered the farmer, between his clenched teeth.

"They were married in the village church," went on Mrs. Granite, "and took the night train for the city two long years ago. From that time to this her fate and whereabouts have been a mystery, and she has never written to us."

"Yes, she wrote," said Ralph Granite, his face growing still harder. "She sent two or three letters after she went away, but I destroyed them the moment I received them."

"And you never told me." Oh, Ralph, Ralph, that was cruel!"

"Not more so than her disobedience to her father's wishes. Come how, drop the subject."

Once more silence reigned in the farmer's cottage.

Ten o'clock came and the storm continued with unabated fury.

The farmer and his wife took up their candle, and securely fastening the door, took their way up to their chamber above the kitchen.

They had scarcely entered the apartment when a pitiful cry was wabted to their ears from without.

Mr. Granite raised the window and put his head out.

"Whose there?" he asked, trying to penetrate the darkness.

"A poor woman who has lost her way in the night and storm," said the sorrowful voice.

"Where do you want to go?"

"I want to reach the village, but I'm not able to walk any further. Won't you give me shelter. Pray do—only till morning!" spoke the wanderer out in that awful storm.

"Poor thing!" cried Granite's wife. "I'll go down and open the door."

"No you won't."

And the farmer stayed his wife; then said to the woman:

"You follow the road a couple o' mile and you'll reach the village. We don't take in wanderers."

He shut down the window, and his wife fell into a chair weeping.

"Ralph, Raiph!" she cried, through her tears, "your heart is ice! The poor woman will perish!"

The farmer made no answer, but retired to bed.

Man without a heart, sleep on, for it is the last night of peaceful slumber that will ever visit your pillow. The morrow's dawn will bring to your house a horror which will blight, darken, and shadow your future on earth; it will rend your icy heart as it was never rent before!

And the poor woman of the storm, where was she? Out on the lonely road, where snow lay in drifts, and the wind tore by. On, on, her step faltered, she stopped, then fell.

Fierce howled the wind, heavier fell the snow, and on the roadside started up a face; white as the snow that surrounded it, the face of the strange woman, rigid in death, in her shroud of snow.

Morning dawned, with a blue sky, a genial sun, and a snow clad country.

Farmer Granite and his wife were eating breakfast,

The farmer's face wore a strange look, and his wife was puzzled.

"Wife," said he, after finishing his breakfast, and pushing back his chair, "do you know what I'm going to do to-day?"

"No."

"Well, then, I'm going to write to the city and ask both Alice and her husband to come out here."

"Are you really in earnest?"

"Yes, wife. I've been a stern father long enough. I'm going to make up with Alice and her husband."

Mrs. Granite's joy was unbounded. The heart of ice was melted at last.

"I wonder what become of that poor woman who came to our door last night?"

"Oh, she's in the village now, in all probability."

A pain, heavy and sharp, seemed to catch his breath.

Why did he start and seize the back of his chair to keep himself from falling?

Four men were coming up the path—four neighbors carrying between them a plank, with something on it.

They entered the farmer's kitchen and laid the burden on the floor.

The farmer and his wife were pale as the dead face before them.

"A woman, Mr. Granite," explained one of the men, "a woman as was found by us four this morning, up yonder on the road. She's quite dead, sir."

"Why—why did you bring her here?" gasped the farmer.

"Cause I thought as how her face looked like—like—"

A wild shriek came from Mrs. Granite, who dropped on her knees and tore the covering off the face of the dead woman.

A cry of agony and horror came from the farmer, as the dead face, with its open, glassy eyes, stared up at him.

"Good Heaven!" he cried, covering his eyes, and staggering backwards.

"It is Alice—our Alice—whom you refused to shelter last night! Oh, Ralph, it is the vengeance of Heaven!"

A moan, and Mrs. Granite fell to the floor in a swoon.

"Our Alice?" moaned the striken father, kneeling at his dead daughter's side, and parting the frozen hair from the white temple. "Our Alice, whose brightness I have so longed for; and I—I killed her! I was going to write for you to-day, Alice. It's too late now!"

His mind was giving way under the awful shock.

A letter was in the postoffice, and had lain there for two weeks past. One day after Alice had been laid in the churchyard, Mrs. Granite received and read it.

It was dated from the city, and from her daughter, telling that her husband had failed in business and died, and that she was coming home—coming back to the place where she was born, for her heart was broken, and prayed that her father might forgive her.

The letter was received too late.

It is summer, and the little churchyard of the village is a blooming Eden.

A double grave has been made; two coffins have been lowered into the earth, and the little slab contains three names—Ralph and Mary Granite, and Alice, their daughter.

Husband, wife and daughter sleep together now, under the shade of the churchyard willow.

Eighteen Sons in the War.

Rev. Daniel S. Helton, a Baptist preacher of Roane county, Tenn., is 88 years old, and is as active as most men at 50. He recently walked three miles to give testimony at the county seat and returned the same day. He says: "I can sight a rifle gun as well as I could sixty years ago, and only for a slight tremble of the hand would not miss one shot in a hundred." In reply to the question, "On which side were your sympathies during late war'" he replied: "I was always a Union man. I had sixteen sons in the Union army and two in the rebel army, and my sympathies were with the Union fourteen majority." When asked if he knew which of the boys were right, he said, "I know which I think was right, cap'n. There war fifteen majority in that 'ar family including me. I helped the boys on the Union side." He has been twice married, and is the father of twenty-one children. He served in the war of 1812, but draws no pension. It is said by the ex-soldiers that he did good service during the war by aiding Union soldiers to communicate with their families when they were in the rebel lines, and in many other ways. If he can't get a pension for services in either the war of 1812 or that of the rebellion, he certainly ought to get a liberal one for his services between the two. The old man is in indigent circumstances.

Points of Law.

A note on Sunday is void.

A note by a minor is void.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

Notes bear interest only when so stated.

An agreement without consideration is void.

The law compels no one to do impossibilities.

The act of one partner binds all the others.

A receipt for the money is not legally conclusive.

Contracts made on Sunday cannot be enforced.

A contract made with a minor is void except for necessities.

If a note is stolen it does not release the maker! he must pay it.

A note obtained by fraud, or even from one intoxicated, cannot be collected.

Each individual in partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm.

An endorser of a note is exempt from liability if not served with notice of his dishonor within twenty-four hours of its non-payment.

The ownership of personal property in law is not changed until the delivery, and the purchaser actually takes possession of such property, though in some States a bill of sale is prima facie evidence of ownership if executed, even against creditors, unless the sale was fraudulently made, for the purpose of avoiding the payment of debts.

A WIFE wanted her husband to sympathize with her in a feminine quarrel; but he refused, saying, "I've lived long enough to know than one woman is as good as another, if not better." "And I," retorted the wife, "have lived long enough to know that one man is as bad as another, if not worse!"

California Driver's.

The California ranchmen have won derfu aptitude for driving, and one sees some pretty good examples among the hills. The road down the mountain sides is entirely unguarded upon the outer edge, and the descent in most places is precipitous. A balky horse or a fractured wheel, or a slight carelessness in handling the reins. might easily send a carriage load of people to destruction—and an awful destruction, too. The path is wide enough for one pair of wheels, only, but, at intervals, in favorable places, it broadens so that teams may pass each other. To drive in such a manner as not to meet another traveler midway between these places is a special branch of the art. The huge lumber teams which carry wood from the mills in the mountains to the yards in the valleys, being unwieldy and very heavy, are especially hard to manage. Yet the drivers always seem easy and nonchalant. First, there is a large four-wheeled oaken truck, with a seat in front ten feet above the ground; behind it is another truck, somewhat shorter, but still enormously stout. These are fastened together and loaded with from ten to fifteen tons of freshly sawn lumber—boards and joists. This mass is drawn by six or eight mules or horses, guided by reins and a prodigiously long whip. The first wagon has a powerful brake, worked by a long iron lever by the driver upon his seat. The driver is a man of nerve and courage. His skill must be of the highest order. It will not do for him to take fright even if in imminent danger, and he must know to a hair's breadth where he can go, and where he can not. Towering up far above the road, overlooking the most stupendous depths, and guiding with a few slender lines a tremendous force, he must needs to be an adept and a tireless one. But a beholder—ignorant of the danger that constantly surrounds him—would say that his work was simple, and that he managed matters with ease. True, he seems so. With his broad-brimed hat shading his sunburned face, his sinewy hands holding the reins with carelessness, his legs outstretched, with one foot feeling the all-important brake, he jogs onward with his monster charge without trouble or concern; the bells upon the horses' breasts jingle a little tune; the great wheels crush the stones in the path; the load creaks like a ship's hull in a sudden gust; wild birds sweep down into hazy, sunny depths below; yet the driver seems to take no heed. But let a scare take place; let a herd of runaway cattle appear at a bend and set the horses wild, and then see what will happen. The day-dreamer will become a giant of strength: he is up in a flash: he shortens his hold upon the reins, and feeling his wagon start up beneath him, places a foot of iron on the brake. The horses snort and rear and surge; the harness rattle, the dust arises, the load shrieks again, and the huge wheels turn fatally faster and faster. An instant may hurl the wagon down into the valley with its struggling train—a mad rush to the other side of the way may end all in one horrible plunge. muscle, eye, brain, skill are then brought to work so splendidly together that the peril is averted, and the looker-on, who knows not the way of the land, regards the teamster with profound respect thereafter.

The Earl of Essex's Ring.

The gay and accomplished Earl of Essex occupied a proud and enviable position. He was the favorite courtier of Queen Elizabeth, and had been loaded with honors and made Lord-Deputy of Ireland. Moreover, he had received a distinguishing proof of the affection of his royal mistress in the gift of a ring, accompanied with the promise, "That should he ever forfeit her favor, to return it to her, and the sight of it would immediately ensure his forgiveness."

But the alluring favor of a sovereign is often fluctuating and dangerous. Darkness and sorrow soon overtook the proud Earl of Essex. He was sent a close prisoner to the gloomy Tower, under charge of high treason, and he must yield his life as a penalty for his crime. Elizabeth, with a bold hand, had signed the death-warrant, and the time for his execution was rapidly approaching.

He had been conducted to prison in a way most harrowing to his sensitive spirit. The death instrument—the axe—had been carried in advance of him, with its sharp edge full in his view, and a merciless, curious crowd had followed, cruelly taunting him.

But his greatest danger came from his rivals and enemies. There were courtiers high in power and in favor with the Queen who gloried in his downfall and thirsted for his blood.

It was a terrible time for the unfortunate Essex, and his soul was shrouded in blackness. His doom appeared inevitable.

At last a faint ray of light arose and struggled for mastery in his bosom. The Queen's gift, the ring was in his possession, and he remembered her promise. Possibly it might lead to his deliverance.

How could he get it to her? He well knew he was surrounded by treachery, and it was difficult to distinguish friends from foes. Could no trusty messenger be found to whom he could confide the precious pledge of past favor to his royal mistress, and be certain it could reach her?

Long did he wrestle with torturing doubts and fears, and after much reflection he decided to make a confidante of the Countess of Nottingham. She had always seemingly manifested a strong interest in him, and had constant access to the Queen. Accordingly, she was sent for, and Essex gave her the ring, and begged her to take it to Elizabeth and entreat her royal pardon for his offence.

Unfortunate Essex! The messenger he had chosen in this dark hour of despair and agony was a secret and bitter enemy. As soon as the Countess of Nottingham had gained the ring, she hurried with it to her husband, and they mutually agreed to conceal the ring and never reveal it to the Queen that it had been sent.

In the meantime, Elizabeth. the great sovereign of England, was sorely agitated and sorrowful. She had firmly signed the death-warrant of the Earl of Essex, but without designing his execution. His rich and versatile talents and manifold attractions had won her affection, and she anxious to save him. He had her pledge of past favor—the ring—and her royal promise that when she would behold it, it would ensure pardon for any offence. Why did he not return it to her? His conduct was unaccountable. Would this high-spirited nobleman prefer to suffer an ignominious death on the scaffold rather than ask clemency.

There was no solution of the mystery; and as the hours passed and no messenger appeared before the Queen bearing the expected ring, her heart grew hard and cold toward Essex, and she determined never, unasked, to revoke the sentence of death.

Time went on. Elizabeth was suffering the keenest anguish, and she could not fathom the surprising obstinacy of her favorite courtier. Essex, too, was hopeless and despairing. He felt that his doom was sealed. The Queen had received the ring, but it had failed to awaken any feelings of pity or mercy within her, and he could see no way of deliverance.

The hour for the execution of Essex came. Accompanied by a strong guard he was conducted to the scaffold. The headsman was there, and a crowd of malignant, blood-thirsty people, anxious to see him die.

The fortitude of Essex did not desert him in this awful hour. Calmnly he laid his head on the block. The axe fell, and the envied, brilliant Essex was no more.

The tidings of Essex's death quickly spread. Thongh he had many rivals and enemies plotting his ruin, the heart of the nation was true and faithful to him, and the people were amazed and horrified.

The soul of Elizabeth was shrouded with gloom, but she adroitly concealed her grief under a mask of gayety.

The days and weeks con inued to come and go. The Countess of Nottingham grew ill. A terrible secret was buried in her breast, and its poison was slowly destroying her. Her guilt robbed her life of all joy and light. It was ever before her in all its hideousness and blackness—a terrible accuser from which she could never escape.

Daily and hourly her illness increased Neither medical skill nor the most careful nursing availed anything. Her anguish was dreadful. As her end approached her remorse was unconquerable. Again and again she called for Elizabeth, and a messenger was sent to summon the Queen.

In feeble, broken accents, the dying Countess disclosed to her her fatal secret. Without any concealment she confessed "that the Earl of Essex had entrusted her with the ring, to convey it to her; but at the instigation of her husband she had kept it, and could not die in peace without her forgiveness."

When informed of the truth, the rage of Elizabeth had no bounds. She seized the arm of the Countess, and cried: "May God forgive you, I never can!"

It was a shock from which the Queen never recovered. Her pledge of affection had caused the death of her much loved Essex, and she could not be comforted.

Soon life became a burden. Her step grew weary and heavy. Ambition was quenched. She became bitter and despotic to her people, and her days and nights were passed in tears and groans till death released her.

Her last act was to appoint James, son of the ill-fated Mary Queen of Scotland, to be her successor. Elizabeth was the greatest of England's sovereigns. She assembled around her the most learned and brilliant men of the times, who contributed much to the glory of her reign.

She expired in the year 1607, at the age of seventy.

A Death Duel.

A bloody duel took place recently near Cottowood, Mo., three miles above the Arkansas line, and about a hundred miles north of Memphis on the Mississippi river, and resulted in the death of both the combatants. The quarrel was between two farmers, named A. M. Crockett and Doc. Nichols, and grew out of Nichols' stock trespassing upon Crockett's land. A bitterness grew up between them, and one carried his griefs into the courts. One day they met at the point mentioned when Nichols cried out: "You see I have not yet been arrested!" Crockett replied: "I see you haven't, you rascal, and I propose to whip it out of you right here!" Nichols said "All right; you just wait till I fix this coffee on my mule and I will join you in that little game!" Crockett quietly awaited Nichols movements until both men met. Crockett drew a large pocket-knife, while Nichols displayed a dirk, or bowie knife. The bloody work began at once, and blood flowed like water from the wounds each stroke of the deadly weapons made in the bodies of the antagonists. Crockett finally got in a stroke on Nichols' neck which severed the juguar vein; having previously cut his tongue completely out. Nichols fell dead by the side of Crockett, who lay on the ground completely exhausted from loss of blood. He survived his wounds only four hours. No one saw the desperate conflict, but a passing neighbor reached the place a few moments before Crockett, died, from whom he learned the above particulars. The gentleman did all he could for Crockett, but he had received his death blow. On Nichols' body thirteen wounds had been inflicted, while on Crockett were eighteen. It is stated that the spot where they fought bore evidences of a long and most terrible conflict. Both men leave families, that of Nichols consisting of his wife and eight children. Both were respected by their neighbors, but Crockett was considered a dangerous quarrelsome man, while Nichols was a peaceable and very quiet neighbor.

Fruit Drying By Cold Blast

An experiment was made at a foundry in Placerwille last week, in fruit curing, by blast of cold air. In this experiment about a peck of sliced apples were placed in a sieve and subjected to a cold blast for three and a half hours in the cupola furnace of the foundry, and the fruit is reported to have been completely and beautifully cured by the treatment, remaining soft and without the slighest discoloration. We were about to say dried, but cured is a better word, for there wrs none of that hard, harsh stiff dryness about it which frequently results from drying by sun heat or fire heat The experiment was a most gratifying success, and in our judgment is fraught with results of great importance to the growers and manipulators of fruit. The blast of cold air completely frees the fruit from its excess of moisture, with no possibility of burning or shriveling it. Compared with sun drying, it effects a great saving of time and labor. Compared with fire drying, it effects a great saving of expense, attention and risk. Anybody who can command or devise a strong blast of cold air, can dry fruit in a superior—we might say perfect—manner, without being dependent on the weather and waiting on the slow process of sun drying, and without the more expensive resort to fuel and the risk of overheating.

The Duke of Edinburgh.

At an early hour the Duke of Edinburgh is mostly to be found reading or writing in his own morning-room—a snug apartment, which like all the others in the house is comfortably, not luxuriously, furnished. Deformed as it is by exterior hideousness, Eastwell supplies an excellent instance in favor of those practical people who insist that houses were not made to be looked at, but to be lived in. The rooms are well disposed for the purpose of circulation, and those in use every day are on the ground floor. Dining-room, music-room, drawing-rooms, morning-rooms and boudoir are all on a level, and are therefore deliciously convenient and comfortable, full of air and light. Two other apartments on the first floor are of especial interest to the select circles visiting at Eastwell. These are the day and night nurseries, absolute models of what such apartments should be. To begin with, they are of immense size, perfectly lighted and ventilated, furnished with light maple and cane furniture, and completely free from the stuffness of deep carpets and rugs. In a corner of the day nursery is a military tent, a birthday present from his father to Prince Alfred, and is treasured accordingly. It is a Spartan kind of an edifice, of gray-striped material, with a plain deal table and a stool—the kind of tent that der alte Fritz, who did not like dandy officers, loved to see his own ensconced in. Before a brightly-burning fire is one of those good old-fashioned brass fire-guards, several feet high, and to the left of this the cots of the four little children are arranged. The two youngest, tired with the morning promenade, are fast asleep; but the little Prince is obviously already outgrowing the idea of going to bed at midday, for he is laughing merrily at the joke of being tucked up again after his glorious run with black "Prince." Little Princess Marie, with her shower of fair hair spread over the pillows and her great blue eyes only half open, is a delightful subject for a painter—a tiny sleeping beauty in the prettiest of woodlands. This midday rest is part of the regular programme at Eastwell, and appears to be successful, if one may judge by present results, for finer and heavier children of their age than Prince Alfred and his sisters could hardly be found.

At midday the Duke of Edinburgh has got through his serious reading, and perhaps some practicing for the family musical party of the evening, and is ready for a drive round the park, which is beautiful and spacious enough to afford ample scope for any species of out-door entertainment. In the afternoon friends arrive from the country side, from London, from Paris and from St. Petersburg. Like the majority of those who prefer a small circle of friends to the crowd and noise of large assemblies, England's Sailor Prince is thoroughly appreciated by all who know him. He is emphatically what is called a quiet man—cheerful rather than joyous, pleasant rather than sparkling. Thoroughly German in his taste for music and serious studies, he is completely English in his domestic life. No man is more pleased with the perfect working of his establishment—from the metropolitan inspector, who, with a brace of constables, keeps watch and ward at Eastwell to the clerk who attends his private telegraph office. Old habits of discipline picked up on the Galatea, and confirmed by recent experience afloat, cannot be lightly shaken off, although the sportive humor of early days may have died out. Like his brother, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh likes good things in reasonable quantities, and is a steady opponent of the German custom of turning dinner into a wearisome ceremony, protracted beyond all reasonable limit by a cumbrous menu. At the little dinners at Eastwell there is no bewildering number of dishes, but a good, straightforward bill of fare, which may be eaten through with perfect enjoyment. Rare things, however, appear at these modest banquets—dishes the mere mention of which sets the gourmand agog—wild boar from the forests in which Arminius brought the Roman legions to naught and sterlet from distant Volga. The sterlet, which is to the sturgeon as a smelt is to a whiting, arrives on some lucky days at Eastwell packed in ice. The eating of him is a species of celebration, and very good indeed he is when 'accommodated' after the genuine Russian fashion. As a rule, music follows dinner at Eastwell; but at times—on the days, for instance, when the Revue des Deux Mondes arrives—the Duchess of Edinburgh, who reads a great deal in several languages, will return to her boudoir, to learn the last words of the French authors, whom she knows as thoroughly as the Russian poets and novelists whose works are to be found wherever she is. There are no late hours at Eastwell; the life in which is simply that of the young parents of an interesting family, who find fair quiet and sweet rest among the Kentish woodlands.

Observatory on Mount Etna.

The Italian Government is about to construct a large observatory on Mount Etna. A site has been selected at a height of 9,652 feet above the level of the sea, near the Casa degl' Inglesi, so called from a building erected there in 1811 by the English during their occupation of Sicily. The purity of the atmosphere is so great at its elevation that the planets can be observed with the naked eye almost as well as with telescopes of low power through the thick atmosphere of towns. Venus, when shining alone in the heavens, casts a distinct shadow. This will be the second loftiest observatory in the world, the United States signal station at Pike's Peals, in Colorado, at an elevation of 14,336 feet, being the loftiest station.

Healthy and Unhealthy Occupation

There is said to be dust everywhere, but what coustitutes dust is variable material. Many occupations, the working of fibres no less than the working of metals, develop dust and seriously affect the lungs. Iron often settles there. A workman, who had polished iron, died, and his lungs were found to be hardened and actually one per cent. of iron in their substance. Grinding, particularly needle-grinding, is very fatal. These grinders die at the average of 31. The grinding of other metal products is unhealthy, but to a less terrible degree, and grinders are proverbially neglectful or proper precautions. Making ground glass is a hard life, and hardly any of the workmen at it are sound. Thirty-five per cent. die of consumption, and many lose their teeth and suffer virtual lead poisoning. Diamond-cutters are generally sick men. Vegetable dust is unhealthy, too. The men who prepare moulds for castnigs sprinkle them with powdered charcoal. They have finally a catarrh with black expectorations, and die of the disease. Millers do not suffer from inhaling dust, but they have a singular skin disease, oftnest affecting the left shoulder, where they carry meal bags. It itches at night only, and, according to some authorities, is not a vegetable matter but an insect. Making brushes is very bad for the health, as bits of bristle go into the lungs. In button making bone dust is not injurious, but mother of pearl is very. Feather handling is exceedingly bad for the lungs and throat, and for the eyes, and artificial flower making brings poisoning with it. Working in copper actually makes the hair green and the teeth and it is said the bones, but it is not injurious. Copper is seldom worked alone and what is called copper poisoning is probably lead poisoning. Seamstresses suffer from poisoning from the stuffs they work. They also hurt their eyes, but the sewing machine, it is now held, is rather a benefit than any injury if used only a few hours a day. It is the all day work at it in bad air that has given it its bad name. Tobacco-working involves a week or two of sickness at first, but this is overcome, and after it the workmen are said to be particularly free from epidemic diseases. However its effects upon women are said to be permanently bad. There is a great lack of children with them. Bleaching is a cause of serious trouble from eczema, which comes from the hot water and lye, which also gives washerwomen cracked hands and eczema. Ninety per cent. of the people employed in preparing sulphate of quinine are taken down with severe eczematous troubles and often high fever. This is a disease that overcomes new workmen and which they only have once. Gasmen also have skin troubles from the violent sweating brought on by the heat, and changes of temperature also develop rheumatism. There is no bronchitis or lung troubles among them. The only way in which mirrors can be made without the horrors of mercurial poisoning is by using silver and letting quicksilver alone, but considerable can be done in improve the condition of mercury workers if they can be made to keep clean, and not to eat in their workshops. Matches in every house and every pocket are made at a terrible cost. Match-makers (not matrimonial, but material), have their intellects dulled by the fumes they inhale and suffer dreadful necrosis of the jaw. No one with imperfect teeth can make matches and not loose his jawbone and teeth. Working in rubber produces "rubber poisoning," which is accompanied by catarrh and eczema and is marked by a singular development of despondency, that leads to dispair and the abandonment of the work, after which recovery comes naturally in. It is a singular fact that offensive odors are not unhealthy. Tanners are proverbally well. In cholera plagues tanners are exempt. Butchers hardly ever know what consumption is. Even scavengers of the lowest order are very well, and stables boys are notoriously healty.

The Ingenious Elephant.

The duke of Argyl in his "Reign of Law" was, I think, the first who promulgated the dictum that man is the only tool-making animal. As far as I can ascertain, this assertion is admitted by developmentists, yet it is undoubtely true that the Indian elephant makes two implements, or forms and alters certain things so as to adapt them especially to fulfill definite purposes, for which, unaltered, they would not be suitable. One evening, soon after my arrival in Eastern Assam, and while the five elephants were as usual being fed opposite the bungalow, I observed a young and lately caught one step up to a bamboo-stake fence, and quietly pull up one of the stakes. Placing it under foot, is broke a piece off with its trunk, and after lifting it to its mouth, threw it away. It repeated this twice or thrice, and then drew another stake and began again. Seeing that the bamboo was old and dry, I asked the reason of this, and was told to wait and see what it would do. At last it seemed to get a piece that suited, and holding it in the trunk firmly, and stepping the left fore-leg well forward, passed the piece of bamboo under the armpit, so to speak, and began to scratch with some force. My surprise reached its climax when I saw a large elephant leech fall on the ground, quite six inches long and as thick as one's finger, and which, from its position, could not easily be detached without this scraper, or scratch, which was deliberately made by the elephant. I subsequently found that it was a common occurence. Leech scrapers are used by every elephant daily. On another occasion, when traveling at a time of year when the large flies are so tormenting to an elephant, I noticed that the one I rode had no fan or wisp to beat them off with. The mayhout, at my order, slackened pace, and allowed her to go to the side of the road, where for some moments she moved along rummaging the smaller jungle on the bank. At last she came to a cluste of young shoots well branched, and after feeling among them, and selecting one, raised her trunk and nearly stripped down the stem, taking off all the lower branches and leaving a fine bunch on top. She deliberately cleaned it down several times, then laying hold at the lower end broke off a beautiful fan or switch about five feet long, handle included: With this she kept the flies at bay as we went along, flapping them off on each side every now and then. Say what we may, these were both really bona fide implements, each intelligently made for a definite purpose.

Modesty in your furniture, equipage and words will show that your mind is well regulated, and your heart free from passion.

Democratic Senators.

Louisiana's Caucus Nominee.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21.—In the democratic caucus to-night, Gen. R. L. Gibson, on the second ballot, received 55 votes, the number required, and his nomination was made unanimous for United States Senator to succeed Senator Kellogg.

GEN. GEORGE NOMINATED IN MISS.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 21.—General George received the nomination for United States Senator to-night on the 49th ballot.

Two more Democratic Senators.

JACKSON, Miss., January 22.—J. B. George was elected United States senator to-day. Senator Lamar has so far recovered that he is able to appear in the corridor of his hotel on crutches.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 22.—The legislature to-day elected R. L. Gibson U. S. senator.

Our Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24th, 1880.

A new delegation of Ute Indians is here and more are on their way. Great secrecy is maintained by Secretary Schurz as to his dealing with them. He said yesterday, however, that he hoped the visits would result in the surrender of the Meeker murderers.

The Kellogg case, so far as testimony goes, is closed. To those who wish to think well of human nature this will be gratifying intelligence. Senator Kellogg asked on Thursday the privilege of introducing another Louisiana witness, but the committee decided to close the case, giving the attorneys of Messrs. Spoffard and Kellogg two weeks in which to file printed arguments. Senator Kellogg might as easily have proved by his witnesses, if he had decided to do so, that he was elected President as Senator. The only point in his favor is the fact that the Senate has elected him by a formal vote and may not wish to reverse that action.

Mr. Hayes deserves some credit, but General a great deal more, for the generally deceptable character of the census supervisor appointments. There is complaint among Democrats in some states, and among Republicans in others but an honest effort was made to secure good men. It is strange that so good satisfaction was given, in selecting a large number of men in whose official action every one will feel an interest.

We are likely to lose one of the few worthy officials connected with the Hayes administration. Assistant Secretary Hanley of the Treasury is pretty sure to be nominated by his party for Governor of Illinois. He has served three terms in Congress previous to holding his present place, and, though a stalwart Republican, it is but fair to say that he is honest and able in the performance of all his public trusts.

There is something worthy of admiration in the perseverance with which the veterans of the woman suffrage movement continue to meet in this city and appear before congressional committee in behalf of suffrage for their sex. They might as well talk to an iceburg or an egyptian mummy as to Senators Edmund, Garland, Davis, and Bayard, yet a dozen of them did so yesterday for hours. The meetings of the association here during this week have been attended by large numbers of intelligent and orderly men and women. A few years ago hardly anybody but "fellows of the baser sort" attended.

CARROLL.

For the Journal.

NEWVILLE, Pa., Jan. 17, 1880.

Dear Mr. Editor.—I was pained to read the obituary notice of my old school teacher Mr. James Aiken, in your paper of one week ago. As one of his many Aaronsburg pupils, I always had the highest regard for this truly good and worthy man. He was a teacher far in advance of teachers in his day. His general scholarship was universally conceded.

Now having been in the world 35 years since he taught me my A, B, C's, and a little further on, I yet remember well the great care and scrupulous pains he took to teach me the rudiments of a good education.

If you will allow me, I desire to make reference to one or two of the methods he practised in teaching the "little ones"—and he was particularly successful in this department of giving instruction.

One method was to reduce the entire school into one class, thus bringing all on an equality in scholarship, apparently and have all spell from the book in monosyllables, This had a tendency greatly to encourage and stimulate the "little ones"—and the larger scholars did not object but rather enjoyed it. As one of the former, I speak from experience.

At another time he would require a "speech." The a-be-ce-darians now had to come up to the standard of those above them, as those had, on other occasions, to come down to those below them. This had a happy effect. It had a tendency to make us feel that we were scholars with the rest, and filled us brim full of enthusiasm. I can now repeat from memory, word for word, my first speech in "the old school house on the hill", from Mattbew 22;1 2, and did it with much fear and trembling. Mr. Aiken did not think the bible an improper book to be used in public schools.

I have now lying before me the little paper covered "National Primer," out of which he taught me my letters, with my name written on the book, in his own clear, legible hand. I also have the copy of the New Testament scriptures in which I first commenced to read under his directions. I also retain in my possession a copy of "A Lecture on the Liquor Licenses and Law" printed by W. B. Shriner, Lewisburg, 1844; and an admirable lecture it is, far superior to the kind usually given on this subject. It gives forth no uncertain sound.

How vividly even now comes before my mind the genial face and the earnest, enthusiastic manner of the dear old teacher. I shall always cherish the memory of Mr. Aiken tenderly and lovingly. He was a good man. A lover of truth and righteousness. An unflinching friend and advocate of every good cause. An earnest defender of the rights of man. He lived not in vain. Though we cannot go with loved ones to plant the first flowers of Spring upon his grave, yet we bring this memorial flower of the heart, and mingle our affectionate regard with the many who will always cherish his memory green, and subscribe myself as one of his pupils.

H. C. HOLLOWAY.

Calling Names in Norwich.

The Rev. L. W. Bacon Pouring Hot-Shot into the Selectmen for Licensing Brothels.

NORWICH, Conn., Jan. 19—Half the citizens of Norwich gathered in mass meeting in Breed Hall this evening and listened to a scathing invective by the Rev. L. W. Bacon, of Sunday excursion and "Blue laws" fame, against the County Commissioners and Board of Selectmen. Mr. Bacon is a temperance man, but not a prohibitionist, and he volleyed the County Commissioners and Selectmen, all of whom were present, with hot shot, because of their recent licensing of Wm. M. Green and "Pat" Shea, two notorious keepers of brothels, to sell liquors. He spoke for two and a half hours in eloquent and vivid portrayal of this heinous wrong of the officers and drew a fearful picture of the vice and wickedness of the places licensed. He was frequently interrupted by bursts of applause and shouts. He arraigned the selectmen by name—O. P. Avery, Capt. W. R. Potter and A. P. Willoughby.

Potter sprang to his feet and accused the clergyman of misrepresentation, and demanded an opportunity to make his apology. He was too much excited and exasperated to speak, but blurted out: "The license business is a mean, low-lived business, and it needs mean, low lived scamps to do it." He was hissed down and told "to get out." 'He could not speak further, and dropped into a seat with face on fire.

"If that is so," reechoed Mr. Bacon, "then it needs mean, low-lived scamps to do the mean, low-lived business."

The meeting broke up in great confusion, amid shouts of "Thats right," "You're right, Mr. Bacon." Capt. Potter jumped into the middle aisle and tried to speak, but was boosted into his seat. There were many ladies present. All the selectmen were strong prohibitionists, two of whom the Speaker called "perfidious wretches," and the third a "middle headed fanatic and fiddle faddle."

GREAT destitution prevails over wide districts in Ireland, and if there is not speedy and full relief extended, actual starvation is sure to follow very soon. The Dublin Mission House Committee issues a very strong appeal to the people of the United States for help. Every effort is of course made by the Irish to help themselves, but the results of these efforts are entirely insufficient to meet the wide-spread distress. On this point committee says:

Every effort is being made in Ireland itself as well by local as by central relief committee, to mitigate the calamity, but owing to the general commercial and agricultural depression, and to the widespread character of distress, those efforts have proved totally inadequate to meet the crisis. We therefore appeal with confidence to all Irishmen and all friends of Irelana for aid in our efforts to save the people from starvation.

It is to be hoped that the American people will respond to the appeal of our Irish cousins with their accustomed open-hearted liberality. While we are loaded down with plenty we must not forget our neighbors who are starving for want of the most common necessities of life.

AN ingenious scheme for the utilization of convicts has been developed and applied in the Central Prison at Toronto. Peculiarly objectionable convicts are placed together, properly armed with knives, are incited to engage in mortal combat. The new system went into operation yesterday, and worked admirably. A convict was almost immediately stabbed, "probably fatally," Of course we must remember that this really was only a trial-trip, as it were. When the system is fairly under way the convicts will deliver only absolutely fatal stabs; and sanguine people believe that the system can be so perfected that in time each convict will kill the other. The new plan promises to relieve the State of expense and the State officers of a very annoying duty.—Ex.

AT a village near New Lexington, Ohio, a marriage recently took place around which clusters a romance of much more than usual interest. The parties to the marriage, Mr. Kennedy and Mrs. English, the former a Philadelphian with five motherless children and the latter an Ohioan with the same number of fatherless little ones. It appears that many years ago, while they both were living in this city, they became greatly attached and were secretly engaged. Parental opposition at last caused the lovers to separate, the young woman's father moving to Ohio. Both married about the same time, and knew nothing of each other's whereabouts until a few months ago. Then, Mr. Kennedy's wife having just died and Mrs. English's husband having done the same thing, the old lovers were thrown together by the merest accident. Mrs. English was nearly destitute and Mr. Kennedy was wealthy. The lover again proposed and was accepted.

IT is now thought that Don Cameron can not deliver the entire state delegation over to Grant, on the 4th of February. We'll see.

WOULD Horatio Seymour accept the Democratic nomination for President, if tendered? That is the question which seems so very hard to decide.

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 29, 1880

P. C. DEININGER, - - - EDITOR.

R. A. BUMILLER, - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.

Local Department.

—O for a beautiful white snow!

—Job work of all kinds done at the JOURNAL Office at prices as cheap as the cheapest.

—A splendid private residence with the good will of a medical practice for sale. For particulars apply at this office. tf.

—A splendid line of Family and Pocket Bibles just received at the Journal Book Store, very cheap. Call and see.

—Jacob Emerick, Esq., of Penns Creek, left on Monday morning for Missouri in quest of a new home. Hope Jacob will find what he is after.

—Mr. John Zeigler, of Haines township, has purchased a farm in Nittany valley, below Jacksonville, and expects to move on it in the spring.

—Wonder when people will be satisfied about the weather. In summer there was no end to complaining about the dryness and everybody is out of humor now because of the rain.

NOT LEAVING.—In order to answer many questions at once, as well as to contradict an untrue and injurious rumor, we are authorized to state that Stam's store is not going to leave in the spring. Both Rus. and the store are content to stay. That's all.

—The five cent counter at the JOURNAL BOOK STORE was not established for the holiday season only, but will be kept up during the year. The many five cent articles of use and beauty are ready for our friends and the public all the time, and

"DON'T YOU FORGET IT."

—On the presidential question the Republican county committee stands thus: Blaine, 22; Grant, 4; Sherman, 1. Credit Mobiler seems to be up, just now. Several weeks ago it was all Grant.

SALES.—E. R. Wolf, Penn township, Wed., Feb. 18th. Farm stock, implements and household goods.

Dr. P. T. Musser, Executor of Mrs. Harriet Breon, decd. Personal effects of decedent, at residence of Benjamin Stover, Haines township, Friday, Feb. 13th.

—Patent right men are busy again in several sections of the state practicing sharp on farmers. If people would but make up their minds to have nothing to do with these scoundrels the business would soon stop of itself. We hope our farmers may fight shy of them.

—How cheering it is to receive a letter from an old and valued friend, from whom you had no direct intelligence for a long time. And this was our feeling exactly when last week we had such a friendly epistle from Rev. H. C. Holloway, one of the Aaronsburg boys of yore. Mr. Holloway now serves the Lutheran congregation at Newville, Cumberland Co., Pa., and has not visited his native town and valley for years, but thinks he may come before very long. Hope he will.

—A grand musical and variety entertainment will be given by the Millheim Cornet Band in the Town Hall, at Millheim, on Saturday evening, February 7th, 1880. The programme will consist of Choruses, Vocal and Instrumental Quartettes, Cornet and Piccolo Solos, Piccolo, Violin and Cornet Duetts, Comic Speeches, Tableaux, Pantomimes, and will be concluded with a laughable farce, entitled "A Race for a Dinner," rendered by ten characters. Ample preparations are being made to make this the Grand Musical Entertainment of the Season. New and expensive sceneries have been expressly provided for the occasion. All lovers of music and mirth are most cordially invited to attend. Admission 25 cents, children 15 cents. Doors open at 6½ o'clock, performance begins at 7½ o'clock.

For the Journal.

An Important Matter.

Mr. Editor:—If you have room in the JOURNAL for a small article, I will through your columns draw the attention of the public to our Cemetery.

I will not now find fault with the manner in which the Cemetery was laid out at first, nor with the careless, negligent way in which it was conducted up to this time, but I have reference to the absolute necessity of enlarging it. There is not and has not been for several years a single lot for sale; all are taken up long ago, but whether all are paid for is another question.

The company should be re-organized incorporated, and the Cemetery enlarged to at least twice its present size.

There are many families in and around town who have no place to bury their dead on any of the grave yards in the neighborhood, nor can they buy such right in the Millheim Cemetery, for the reason before stated, that all the plots are disposed of long ago. This is why an enlargement has become imperative.

I have now "opened the question" and wait to see if anything will be done in the matter.

OBSERVER.

"OBSERVER" touches a very sore spot in our community and every resident citizen should feel mortified at the manner in which our City of the dead has been managed, or mismanaged. We have repeatedly called attention to to the dilapidated condition of the grave yard, but have utterly failed to excite any interest for a better spirit and management. The regular annual meetings and elections have even been neglected for several years. We doubt whether the company has a single officer to-day whose term has not expired long since

Let "Observer's" suggestion be agitated, acted upon, until our Cemetery is enlarged, cleared up and beautified, and thus become an honor to the town, instead of a burning reproach as is now the case.

Who will move in the matter?

The Concert of the Millheim Cornet Band will come off next week, and everybody that loves music and fun should attend, as it will be the best treat, ever seen in these regions,

CONCERNING THE CENSUS.—The penalties for obstructing the census takers, who begin their labors on the first Monday in June, are severe. The law says:

"All persons above the age of twenty-one years who shall refuse to furnish the information required by the supervisor or enumerator shall pay a sum not exceeding $100 to be recovered in an action of debt. Presidents, Directors or other officials of private corporations who refuse to furnish information required of them are made liable to a penalty not to exceed $10,000."

Only two weeks are allowed for the completion of the census. The compensation to the enumerators is as follows: Two cents for each living inhabitant; two cents for each death reported; ten cents for each farm; fifteen cents for every manufactory, which is to be full for all services, and no mileage or traveling expenses. The subdivision assigned to each enumerator must not exceed 4,000 inhabitants.—Exchange.

Don't forget the Band Concert on Saturday of next week.

AARONSBURG CRUMBS.

Miss Stevenson and Mr. Swartz, of Nittany valley are the guests of Mr. D. Lenker.

The meeting in the Evangelical church has been in progress for some time and has met wtih moderate success. Hope it may yet be the means of great good.

The Reformed congregation is still without a pastor. They have been in correspondence with a number of ministers and hope to secure a pastor by Spring, at farthest.

Rev. J. G. Shoemaker is said to be on his way hither, and his visit is looked forward to with a great deal of eagerness.

Almost had a fire, last week, but it amounted to no more than a burning chimney. Succeeded in frightening a few people pretty well, and then obligingly went out.

We have had lovely weather since this month came in. Some days have been so fine that we found it hard to realize that it was our usually cold, ill-behaved old friend January, who was treating us so well. X. Y.

ECHOES FROM COBURN.

Mr. Geo. Bower was kept in doors several days last week in consequence of a sprained knee; but is now able to go about again as usual.

There are several good-looking widowers at Coburn, and as many better looking old maids up along Pine Creek. Judging from present prospects there will be a "match" before long; and in view of such an event it will perhaps, not be improper to remark that all cake, turkey &c., &c., sent to editors and others will be very gladly received.

A number of articles of clothing were taken from Jacob W. Moyer's back yard without the knowledge or consent of the owner. The thieves have been "spotted," and if the stolen property is not returned within one week, they will be brought to speedy and certain grief.

Solomon Ettlinger, Esq., is shipping large quantities of pork. Sol is an industrious and enterprising business man, always endeavoring to acquaint himself with the details of his business. He has just begun the study of the Roman Catholic Catechism which he says all pork dealers should do. Undoubtedly the Catechism will reveal an important fact in the pork trade.

Mr. John M. Stover has in his possession a cat which, he says, is over twenty-one years of age. This is certainly a good old age for a cat. Old enough to vote or die, or both. But she still enjoys good health and attacks a rat with all the native vigor of the feline species.

This aged cat has lived through an eventful period of American history. She was, no doubt quietly watching for rats in the barn when the bombardment of Fort Sumpter began. She may have heard of the great hero of the war, of his victories at Forts Henry and Donaldson, of his receiving the surrender of the Confederate army, of his being twice elected to the presidency, of his tour around the world and of the great "boom" on his return.

I say she has lived through all this, but she will not live to see him become chief magistrate of this nation again if she lives to be as old as Methuselah. ["And so you all say." Ed]

XENAGORAS.

SPRING MILLS ITEMS.

Mr. Fred Zettle, we are sorry to say lost his pocket book containing $15 in greenbacks with other papers of value. $5 reward to the finder. Hope Mr. Z. will get his money again.

It was an unlucky week as a Miss Jamison also had the misfortune to loose her money purse; what loss was sustained has not yet been ascertained.

The Grangers meeting was very good. Col. Weaver of Milesburg and Deputy Rhone addressed the meeting. The singing was superb, J. F. Rarick presiding at the organ.

Rev. Whitney is still holding the protracted meeting on the hill, where much good is being done. Eight persons united with the church on Monday evening.

The Musical Convention last week was very well attended and by the united and untiring energy of the committee it was a perfect success although the weather was very unpleasant. The following are the names and addresses of singers who took an active part:

The Convention under the direction of Prof P. Meyer, with Miss Ada Fisher of Boalsburg, Pianist, and Miss Cora Murray, Organist, could not but give entire satisfaction to all as they are all fully competent to perform the part assumed. Prof's. Smith & Grenoble gave us some of their artistic violin music, which was very good. The last piece but not by any means the least was performed by Mrs. Durst of Tyrone which was the capping of the climax; she was applauded fully three minutes when the lady acknowledged the applause by rising and bowing to the audience which was a very large one. The house was crowded to its utmost. Hope the lady may come again and favor us with her music. Financially the convention was also a success, as the committee report a nice little surplus. Come again. Bunnell & Aikens of Bellefonte furnished the musical instruments.

YONEY.

News Miscellaney.

It is the opinion of physicians in the northern part of the state that eating snow has much to do with the spread of diphtheria.

The Selinsgrove Tribune says that George Weirich, after serving five years and several months in the eastern penitentiary for the murder of Dr. P. R. Wagonseller, in September, 1878, returned to his home in that place, last Tuesday evening.

DON'T DUN ON POSTAL CARDS.—To dun a debtor on a postal card makes the creditor sending it liable to a criminal prosecution. It has been decided by the supreme court of Ohio to be unlawful. The court wisely held that anything so written that it is liable to injure the credit or reputation of any one is a crime that the writer should be held strictly accountable for damages. The decision was made in the case of a man who dunned for an old account on a postal card, and in that manner made the matter public to the detriment of the latter's credit elsewhere.—Ex.

Erastus J. Burkert, who is said to be a native of Centre county, Pa., and who at present must live in the vicinity of Chicago, is reported in the Chicago Tribune to have performed the wonderful feat of writing 7,606 words, on an ordinary postal card. The words written include the fifth, sixth and seventh chapters of St. Matthew and the first, second, third, fourteenth and fifteenth chapters of Ecclesiastes. This is the greatest feat of its kind on record.—Lewisburg Journal.

Guess that chap is our own Lieut. Rast Burkert, formerly of Rebersburg, and 'tis the first word we heard of him this long time.

Clay Rice, an old hunter of Lyon county, Ky., went over into the Missouri swamps, back of the town of New Madrid, a few weeks ago, and there met with an extraordinary run of luck in deer shooting. He, with his son and a companion of the latter, killed 93 deer in as many hours. Rice ascribes his success to a sheet of water under which the whole country, by reason of recent storms, rested. At various points in the swamp lands, small islands or ridges stuck up just above the overflow, and upon these islands the deer congregated. Shortly after the arrival of Rice and his fellows, a cold snap covered the water with a thick sheeting of ice, and as the deer were unable to run over the slippery surface the hunters found every advantage in their favor. Rice on one occasion killed eight royal bucks without moving from his tracks, and on another two of the party having hemmed in a herd of fifty, killed eighteen of them. Six of the eighteen were caught without a shot, as they fell on the ice and remained there, though resisting frantically, until their throats had been slit with a bowie. Many of the incidents of the hunt were exciting in the extreme, and no painting could do justice to the picturesqueness of some of the scenes.

A MURDERER'S REMORSE.—Milwaukee, Jan. 22. This afternoon W. W. Nottingham, who was employed in Ashenman & Co's cigar manufactory under the name of Parker, appeares at the Central Police Station and asked to be taken into custody for murder. He stated that six years ago he shot and killed one John Gaylor in a street fight in Norfolk, Va., though the shot was intended for another man. During six years' wandering in all parts of the country the face of his victim has been constantly before him, and he now wants to be taken back to Norfolk and punished for the murder. His statement was telegraphed to Norfolk and the authorities of that city have requested his detention until a requisition can be secured.

THE CURTIN-YOCUM CONTESTED ELECTION CASE.—Washington, Jan. 21. Representative Springer, chairman of the sub-committee charged with the Curtin-Yocum contested election case, says in addition to what has already been stated in these dispatches, that they will require further time to examine the record in this complicated case, and it is now doubtful whether they will recommend an election by the people. That the inclination of the committee is in favor of this course, but it has been found impracticable to complete the case in time to have the election take place in February, and they doubt whether it would be desirable to order another election at a later period. This may result in the committee meeting the issue directly, and determining whether they will seat Mr. Curtin or allow Mr. Yocum to continue in his seat. This latter view of the question, however, ex-Governor Curtin's friends do not desire, as they prefer that the case shall be referred back to the people, and have presented an earnest request to that effect.

A fox chase in Lancaster county wound up in a free fight, in which fifteen men were engaged, many receiving black eyes and bloody noses. The fox escaped.

IRELAND'S DISTRESS.—Dublin, Jan. 23. At a meeting of the Mansion House Committee for Irish Relief yesterday the Rev. Dr. Duggan, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Clonfert, said that the distress in his diocese was pressing and aggravated, and that instant relief was required. He deprecates the restrictions of the Board of Works, under which very few people could obtain loans. The committee made grants for relief amounting to $18,400, including $5,000 to the Central Committee of County Donegal. It was intimated that $5,000 each would be granted in five western counties to the Central Committees, comprising the Bishops of both churches, the members of Parliament, and all clergymen and physicians.

A deputation was appointed to wait on the Lord Lieutenant and the Chief Secretary for Ireland, urging the Government to provide seed for the small farmers. The Corporation of Cork propose to ask, at the next meeting of the Committee, a loan of £100,000 for the carrying out of an extensive scheme of sewerage and paving. A large amount of additional employment is being afforded by Corporation and the Harbor Board.

THE Cincinnati Times says that the Democratic National Convention will be he held in that city.

POOR Hayes is not even mentioned as a possible candidate for President.

DIED.

On the 11th inst., in Madisonburg, Hannah Bickle, widow, aged 79 years, 10 months and 27 days.

On the 22nd in Millheim, Reuben Franklin, son of P. P. and Rebecca Leitzell, aged 1 year, 1 month and 4 days.

On the 22nd inst., in Millheim, John N., son of Elisha C., and Sarah J. Campbell, aged 21 years, 3 months and 6 days.

John was one of the few who had no enemies; every person was his friend in as much as he harmed no one. He was always jovial and merry. His death caused more sad hearts, and a greater vacancy, than the death of most any other young man of his age in town would have done. From his childhood up he has been a warm friend and faithful attendant of Sabbath school and church, his place being very seldom vacant. For the last four years he has not missed his sabbath school when able to attend, and was always there in time. No need to wait on him. During his illness the constant yearning of his heart was to be restored and be able to attend. The Evangelical Sabbath school of which he was such a faithful member, deeply mourns his departure and sympathizes with his parents, brother and friends, in their sad bereavement. In memorial of him whom they loved so dearly, the school attended his funeral in a body, conducting the singing. After the sermon the school formed in procession in front of the church and headed the corpse to the cemetery, where, during the singing of an appropriate hymn by the school, his remains were laid at rest. His pall bearers were all members of his sabbath school. His death has caused a vacancy in a happy family, that will long mourn over his absence in their circle. He died in peace. May all the young people of this town imitate his example in being punctual at sabbath school and church, and manifest a life attentive disposition while there, and their latter end may be peace. D. L. Z.

FARM AND GARDEN.

FATTENING TURKEYS.—It is a goodly sight, as the summer days wane, to see the flocks of Turkeys coming home from the woods and pastures at night-fall with full crops. If the farm has not been overstocked with these birds, they have very largely made their living upon grasshoppers, crickets, worms, and other small fry. The regular food they have had has been rather to keep them wonted than to supply any lack of forage. As the cool nights come on, and the supply of insects declines, the business of fattening properly commences. It should be remembered that plump, well-dressed turkeys not only bring a higher price in market, but enhance the reputation of the producer, and make his market sure for future years. The turkey is one of the finished products of the farm, and one of the greatest luxuries in the market. The farmer should do his best in preparing his flock for the shambles. The main business now is to lay on fat, and the birds should have every night and morning a full supply of nutritious and fattening food. Instinctively the turkey follows his feed, and if the supply is abundant at the farm-yard, he will not stroll far from home. Boiled potatoes, mashed and mixed with meal, and fed moderately warm, is a very excellent feed, both to promote growth and to fatten. If the pigs can be robbed of a part of their milk, and it be mixed with a part of the hot potatoes and meal, it will very much improve the dish. It is very desirable to supply the place of insects with some kind of animal food, and butchers' scraps is one of the cheapest and most desirable forms of food for poultry. Grain should be given at least once a day with the soft and warm feed. Nothing is better than sound corn. The Northern corn is thought to contain more oil than that of Southern growth. Old corn should always be used for this purpose. The new corn keeps them too loose. In feeding only so much corn should be thrown out, as the birds will eat up clean. Take a little time to feed them, and study esthetics as you watch the iridescent hues upon the glossy plumage. There is nothing more charming upon the farm in the whole circle of the year than a hundred or two of these richly-bronzed turkeys feeding near the corn-crib. You can afford to enjoy the disappearance of corn while the turkeys are increasing in weight.

HINTS ON HORSE KEEPING.—The wide stall is a luxury, and ought to be six, or even ten feet wide, if room can be spared. Loose boxes are important for horses of great value; in such stalls they can get perfect repose by changing their position, recover from the fatigue of a hard day's drive, and be ready for their task the next day. The best food adapted to the horse is oats and hay of the best quality, occasionally varied with a bran mash, with turnips or carrots as an alternative. The growth and development of bone and muscle depend greatly on the food they eat. It is important to select such as contains all the elements needed to form the bone and muscle of the horse. It is self-evident that the nutritive matter supplied by the food must be equal to the exhaustion or natural waste of the body, to keep up condition. The horse that is about to be driven on a journey needs hardening by exercise—preparing by sweating out the body to purify and increase the circulation of the blood and also by hand-rubbing the legs to make them firm and elastic—a preparation in some degree corresponding with that attained by a horse that is daily driven on the road for ordinary work. For one week from the start they need daily exercise, commencing with eight or ten miles, and gradually increasing to twenty per day. This exercise, with appropriate food, will harden their muscles, strengthen their limbs, and prepare them to perform their tasks without giving out on the road, materially declining in flesh, or seriously exhausting their physical powers. If we perform long drives with horses accustomed to short work only, the sudden transition from indolence to great exertion will relax their muscles, weaken their joints, depress their spirits and break down their constitution. The leading cause of so many valuable horses being spoiled by long drives is being short of work. They are not prepared for such severe exertions. Condition will prepare their work cheerfully, last out with sound limbs, and prepare their constitutional vigor for future usefulness.

DRY EARTH AS BEDDING FOR STOCK.—There is nothing more useful in promoting the health and comfort of stock during the winter season, when animals have to be housed and fed, than dry earth. While it is the most abundant, cheapest and easily acquired of all absorbents and disinfectants, it is almost entirely neglected. Straw makes a very imperfect bedding. It serves no purpose whatever, as an absorbent and only indifferently well for keeping the animals clean. Farmers who have comfortable barns and stables for their stock should, during the dry season in the fall, and before freezing commences, gather from roads and sources of supply that are convenient, and store under cover, enough pulverized dry earth to keep the stalls and sleeping apartments of their stock well supplied through the winter. A good bed of dry earth is far more comfortable for hogs than one of straw, but both should be used. For keeping the stables where milch cows are sheltered and fed, clean and sweet, fine dry earth is superior to anything else. The liquid voiding of the animals is absorbed and all smells prevented from pervading the premises. A dusting of dry earth banishes vermin from stock, and is at once the simplest, most convenient and harmless of all remedies for, or prevention of, vermin. As a saver of manure for those who value this source of farm wealth, dry earth is the most complete. There is nothing more desirable than clean, sweet cow-stables if good milk and butter are objects, and no other means will achieve this end so thoroughly, so conveniently and without extra expense, as to have convenient for use through the winter a supply of dry earth.

MUSTY hay and damaged grain cannot be fed to stock with impunity.

Something for the New Year.

The world renowned success of Hostetter's Bitters, and their continued popularity for a quarter of a century as a stomachic, is scarcely more wonderful than the welcome that greets the annual appearance of Hostetter's Almanac. This valuable medical treatise is published by Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa., under their own immediate supervision, employing 80 hands in that department. Ten cylinder printing presses, 8 folding machines, 5 job presses, &c., are running about eleven months in the year on this work, and the issue of same for 1880 will not be less than ten millions, printed in the English, German, French, Welsh, Norwegian, Swedish, Holland, Bohemian and Spanish languages. Refer to a copy of it for valuable and interesting reading concerning health, and numerous testimonials as to the efficacy of Hostetters' Bitters, amusement, varied information, astronomical calculations and chronological items, &c., which can be depended on for correctness. The Almanac for 1880 can be obtained free of cost, from druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the country.

DOMESTIC.

CUTS.—In treating ordinary cuts, cleanliness and care are generally more requisite than skill. If the cut be extensive, or an artery, vein, or any other important part be injured, it becomes a more urgent matter. Accidental cuts from knives, cutting tools, &c., are more likely to occur on the face and limbs than on the body. All that is requisite in general, is to bring the parts together as accurately as possible, and bind them up; this is usually done by adhesive plaster, when the cut ceases to bleed. Nothing is so good for this purpose as paper, first washed over on one side with thick gum water, and then dried; when used, it is only to be slightly wetted with the tongue. When the cut bleeds but little, it is well to soak it in warm water for a few minutes, or to keep a wet cloth on it. This removes inflammation and pain, add also a tendency to faintness, which a cut gives some person. If the bleeding be too copious, dab the part with a rag wetted with creosote. If the wound be large, it should be sewed up. If the blood that issues be very scarlet, it may be concluded that an artery has been touched, and then whenever the bleeding cannot be stopped, medical aid must be procured; the best method to persue is to bind up the wound tightly, or to hold a finger strongly against the part that bleeds.

TO MAKE BARLEY SUGAR.—To every pound of sugar allow half a pint of water, and half the white of an egg. Put the sugar into a well tinned saucepan, with the water, and when the former is dissolved, set it over a moderate fire, adding the well-beaten egg before the mixture gets warm, and stir it well together. When it boils remove the scum as it rises and keep it boiling until no more appears, and the syrup looks perfectly clear; then strain it through a fine sieve or muslin bag, and put it back into the saucepan. Boil it again like caramel, until it is brittle, when a little is dropped in a basin of cold water, it is then sufficiently boiled. Add a little lemon juice and let it stand for a minute or two. Have ready a marble slab rubbed over with salad oil; pour on the sugar, and cut it into strips with a pair of scissors; these strips should then be twisted.

PROFITABLE PATIENTS.—The most wonderful and marvelous success, in cases where persons are sick or wasting away from a condition of miserableness, that no one knows what ails them, (profitable patients for doctors,) is obtained by the use of Hop Bitters. They begin to cure from the first dose and keep it up until perfect health and strength is restored. Whoever is afflicted in this way need not suffer when they can get Hop Bitters. See other column.

A VERY large quantity of poisonous vines, or ivy, which clings to the trees, particularly oaks, is found scattered all over, and few persons know what to use to relieve themselves from the tormenting irritation it produces. We therefore recommend "Labarraque's solution of chloride of soda, which when the skin is not broken, can be applied three or four times a day; when broken, it should be diluted with from three to six parts water. This remedy is also prescribed for erysipelas, burns and scalds and is found to be very efficacious.

MINCED VEAL AND EGGS.—Take some remnants of roast or braised veal, trim of all browned parts, and mince it very finely; fry a shallot, or onion, chopped small, in plenty of butter; when it is a light straw color add a little pinch of flour and a little stock, then the mince meat, with chopped parsley, pepper, salt and nutmeg to taste; mix well, add more stock if necessary, and let the mince gradually get hot by the side of the fire: lastly add a few drops of lemon juice. Serve with sippets of bread fried in butter round, and the poached eggs on the top.

THE price of soap is rapidly advancing. A year's supply of DOBBINS' ELECTRIC bought now at old price will be a very judicious purchase

CHOCOLATE DROPS.—Pour half a pint boiling water on one quart of white sugar; mix well, and boil ten minutes without stirring; place the saucepan in cold water, and stir briskly till it becomes stiff enough to handle; mould it in little balls and put it aside to cool. Break the chocolate in pieces, and put in a bowl in top of a boiling tea-kettle; when melted, remove the bowl, and drop in the balls one at a time; take them out with a fork and place on buttered paper.

FRICASSEE CHICKEN.—Take two good-sized chickens, nicely cleaned and divided. Stew them in one quart of water, and a half pint of rich, sweet milk: add a little salt and pepper, one fourth of a pound of butter, a pint of tender green corn cut from the cob: and when the chickens are perfectly done, thicken the gravy with a tablespoonful of flour made into a smooth paste with a little cold water. Send to the table in a deep dish.

HUMOROUS.

"WHICH TRAIN?"—Recently a lady, after gazing at all the brass-buttoned officials in the depot finally approached one of the most genial conductors on the road.

"Can you tell me, sir," said she, "who is conductor of this train?"

"What train, madam?"

"This train," (gazing vacantly into space.)

"Yes, madam, but which train?"

"The 5.35 train."

"Yes, yes: but which route?" returned the conductor, getting red in the face.

"For the West," sweetly replied the lady.

"Well, which way—by the way of Buff—"

"Yes, by the way of Buffalo," she replied.

"Yes, madame, there he stand within two feet of you."

Dr. C. Huter, a German savant, of Griefswalb, has devised a simple arrangement which demonstrates the circulation of the blood in the human body by making it visible. What is known as Purkinje's experiment previously enabled an observer to witness the circulation in his own retinal blood vessels; but now, for the first time, can the flow of the vital fluid in one person be watched by another, and that, we are assured, with sufficient accuracy to detect anything abnormal, and to obtain invaluable assistance in the diagnosis of disease. Dr. Huter's method is as follows: The patient's head being fixed in a frame, on which is a contrivance for supporting a microscope and a lamp, his lower lip is drawn out and fixed on the stage of the microscope by means of clips, the inner surface being uppermost, and having a strong light thrown upon it by a condenser. When these preparations are completed all the observer has to do is to bring the microscope to bear on the surface of the lip, using a low-power objective, and focusing a small superficial vessel. At once he sees the endless procession of the blood corpuscles through the minute capillaries the colorless ones appearing like white specks dotting the red stream

Dr. Huter asserts that from taking careful note of variations in the blood flow and changes in the corpuscles he has derived great advantages in the treatment of medical cases.

A Valuable Plastic Cement.—Amongst the many useful purposes which glycerine has served, there are probably none says The English Mechanic, of greater utility than its combinations with other substances, by which compounds with peculiar properties have been produced. A plastic cement is the latest invention in which glycerine forms the important ingredient; it is known as Jannin's cement, from the name of the patentee, a resident of Paris. The cement is simply a mixture in suitable proportions of yellow oxide of lead (the quality known as massicot being preferable) with glycerine. Several other metallic oxides and matters may be mixed with the cement, so as to suit the quality or the color of the cement to the nature of the work to be produced, but the two essential compounds are yellow oxide of lead and glycerine. The proportions of oxide of lead and glycerine vary according to the consistency of the cement it is desired to produce. The proportion of glycerine will of course be larger for a soft cement than for a stiff cement; it is not necessary therefore, to specify the exact proportion of each of the two essential compounds. This cement is specially adapted for moulding those objects which require an extreme delicacy in the lines of the cast, such as engraved blocks and plates, forms of printing type, photoglyptic plates, etc. Under the influence of gentle heat it sets in a few minutes, and then resists perfectly both pressure and heat. When set it is also a good substitute for natural lithographic stones, and it can replace them for many practical purposes. It can also be used for artistic reproductions, such as fac-similes of terra cotta, whose color and sonorous quality it possesses. Though setting to great hardness in a few minutes, it does not shrink. Massicot, it may be observed, is an old name for litharge, but the term is more generally applied to the yellow oxide of lead prepared from the scum of molten metal by roasting until the color is fully developed. For purposes in which the color is of no moment, the scum itself would doubtless answer, provided it is throughly oxidized.

FOR RELIEVING THROAT TROUBLES, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" have a world-wide reputation, and as they contain nothing that will injure the system, they can be used without fear of bad results.

Rottenstone is sometimes harsh and gritty; the best way of trying it is to take a little between the teeth, when the last portion of grit may be detected. Careful workmen will always wash it before using. This is effected by stirring the fine powder in a considerable quantity of water, then allowing it to remain at rest for a few seconds, and pouring the water into a glazed earthen vessel. The powder which then precipitates will be perfectly fine and smooth. By washing the remainder, the whole of the finer parts may be separated from the grit.

"MAY your troubles only be little ones, and may you always have Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup handy," said an old bachelor to a newly-married couple.

Some interesting laws of the variations of atmospheric electricity have been deduced by Denza from the regular data collected at the Observatoro of Moncalleri. In Piedmont there are daily two maxima of electricity, following the rising and setting of the sun, at an interval of some hours. Between these maxima is a minimum which follows the passage of the sun over the meridian of the place. The annual maximum of the atmospheric electrical tension occurs in February and the minimum in September. Before and after storms the electrometer stands at zero, but during their passage it indicates very high tension In calm and hot weather the lowest values are observed. Negative electricity is generally due to storms or rain at a distance or to a polar aurora.

VEGETINE.

Liver Complaint.

This disease may be said to proceed almost invariably from the stomach being out of order in the first place. By the stomach being out of order, the blood also gets out of order; and why? All the blood in the human body passes through the liver every few minutes to have the bilious matter separated from it. If there be any scrofulous taint or other impurity in the blood, it will surely be deposited in the liver along with the bile. By and by, however, these impurities increasing, will render the blood watery, and render its motion torpid; then it will cease to perform its duty of straining out the bile. Only poison will be left in the liver; and the result will be an obstructed, inflamed and swollen liver, ending in disease. Such is the theory, and such the climax, as proven by facts. The symptoms crowd rapidly upon one another,—a continued pain or tenderness in the right side, inducing emaciation and weakness; cough with expectoration, dyspepsia, high-colored urine, yellowness of the eyes, fever, a disquick pulse. It is impossible to mistake the dis ase by these symptoms. There is only one way of curing Liver Complaint; and that is, to strike at the root. To do this, you must act on the stomach, the blood, the liver, and the general health at the same time. VEGETINE alone will do this, and will effect a speedy cure. See testimonials.

Rochester Policeman "Gained Eight Pounds in Three Weeks"

MR. H. R. STEVENS.

Dear Sir—Having used but three bottles of your VEGETINE in a very bad case of Liver Complaint, I find myself improving rapidly. Am weighing eight pounds more at present than I did when I began taking it, and believe, with a continuance of a small quantity more, I shall be entirely cured. Before I began taking the VEGETINE I was under the doctors care. Was sick a long time. Mr. Smith, who had received great benefit from taking the VEGETINE, advised me to try it. I can cheerfully recommend it to every one as a good medicine, as the VEGETINE has done more for me than the doctors can do

Yours truly,

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I have been sick two years with the liver complaint, and during that time have taken a great many different medicines, but none of them did me any good. I was restless nights, and had no appetite. Since taking the VEGETINE I rest well, and relish my food. Can recommend the VEGETINE for what it has done for me. Yours respectfully,

HEALTH IS WEALTH.

Health of Body is Wealth of Mind.

Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

Pure blood makes sound flesh, strong bone and a clear skin. If you would have your flesh firm, your bones sound, without caries, and your complexion fair, use Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

A GRATEFUL RECOGNITION.

"To cure a CHRONIC OR LONG STANDING DISEASE is truly a victory in the healing art; that reasoning power that clearly discerns DEFECT and supplies a remedy; that restores step by step—by degrees—the body which has been slowly attacked and weakened by an insidious disease, not only commands our respect but deserves our gratitude. Dr. Radway has furnished mankind with that wonderful remedy, Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent which accomplishes this result, and suffering humanity, who drag out an existence of pain and disease, through long days and long nights, owe him their gratitude."—Medical Messenger.

FALSE AND TRUE.

We extract from Dr. Radway's "Treatise on disease and its Cure," as follows:

List of Diseases Cured by

Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

Chronic Skin Diseases, Caries of the Bone, Humors in the Blood, Scrofulous Diseases, Bad or Unnatural Habit of Body, Syphilis and Venereal, Fever Sores, Chronic or Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Rickets, White Swelling, Scald Head, Uterine Affections, Cankers, Glandular Swellings, Nodes, Wasting and Decay of the Body, Pimples and Blotches Tumors, Dyspepsia, Kidney and Bladder Diseases, Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Consumption, Gravel and Calculous Deposits, and varieties of the above complaints to which sometimes are given specious names.

We assert that there is no known remedy that possesses the curative power over these diseases that RADWAY'S RESOLVENT furnishes. It cures step by step surely, from the foundation, and restores the injured parts to their sound condition. The wastes of the body are stopped and healthy blood is supplied to the system, from which new material is formed. This is the secret of the effective power of RADWAY'S RESOLVENT. In cases where the system has been salivated and Mercury, Quicksilver, Corrosive Sublimate have accumulated and become deposited in the bones, joints, etc., causing caries of the bones, rickets, spinal curvatures, contortions, white swellings, varicose veins, etc., the SARSAPARILLIAN will resolve away those deposits and exterminate the virus of the disease from the system.

If those who are taking these medicines for the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous or Syphilitic diseases, however slow may be the cure, will feel better, and find their general health improving, their flesh and weight increasing, or even losing its own, is a sure sign that the cure is progressing. In these diseases the patient either gets better or worse—the virus of the disease is not inactive; if not arrested and driven from the blood it will spread and continue to undermine the constitution. As soon as the SARSAPARILLIAN makes the patient feel better every hour you will grow better and increase in health, strength and flesh.

OVARIAN TUMORS.

The removal of these tumors by RADWAY'S RESOLVENT is now so certainly established that what was once considered almost miraculous is now a common recognized fact by all parties. Witness the cases of Hannah P. Knapp, Mrs. G. Krapf, Mrs. J. H. Jolly and Mrs. P. D. Hendrix, published in our Almanac for 1879; also that of Mrs. C. S. Bibbins, in the present edition of our "False and True."

One Dollar per Bottle.

MINUTE REMEDY.

Only requires minutes, not hours, to relieve pain and cure acute disease.

Radway's Ready Relief.

In from one to twenty minutes, never fails to relieve PAIN with one thorough application. No matter how violent or excruciating the pain the RHEUMATIC, Bed-ridden, Infirm, Crippled, Nervous, Neuralgic, or prostrated with disease may suffer, RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will afford instant ease.

Inflammation of the Kidneys, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Bowels, Congestion of the Lungs, Sore Throat, Difficult Breathing, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, Croup, Diphtheria, Catarrh, Influenza, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Cold Chills, Ague Chills, Chilblains, Frost Bites, Bruises, Summer Complaints, Coughs, Cold, Sprains, Pains in the Chest, Back or Limbs, are instantly relieved.

FEVER AND AGUE.

Fever and Ague cured for Fifty Cents. There is not a remedial agent in the world that will cure Fever and Ague, and all other Malarious, Bilious, Scarlet, Typhoid, Yellow and other fevers (aided by RADWAY'S PILLS) so quick as RADWAY'S READY RELIEF.

It will in a few moments, when taken according to directions, cure Cramps, Spasms, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Wind in the Bowels, and all Internal Pains.

Travelers should always carry a bottle of RADWAY'S READY RELIEF with them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or pains from change of water. It is better than French brandy or bitters as a stimulant.

Miners and Lumbermen should always be provided with it.

CAUTION.

All remedial agents capable of destroying life by an overdose should be avoided. Morphine, opium, strychnine, arnica, hyoscamus, and other powerful remedies, does at certain times, in very small doses, relieve the patient during their action in the system, But perhaps the second dose, if repeated, may accelerate and increase the suffering, and another dose cause death. There is no necessity for using these uncertain agents when a positive remedy like RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will stop the most excruciating pain quicker, without entailing the least difficulty in either infant or adult.

THE TRUE RELIEF.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is the only remedial agent in vogue that will instantly stop pain.

Fifty Cents per Bottle.

Radway's Regulating Pills.

Perfect Purgatives, Soothing Aperients, Act Without Pain, Always Reliable and Natural in their Operation.
